"I feel very honoured and excited to come home. Back to my University where I graduated about 40 years ago," said Mr Pang Chung, the Honorary Secretary General of the Hong Kong Delegation.

"It was a wonderful experience to compete in an international event, although it was very tiring for me to train for the Asian Games during the period I was working on my final year thesis. I am very grateful to the Professors at the Institute of Human Performance, in particular to Mr Stan Cinnamon, for their tremendous support," said Miss Cheung Yi Nei Lynette, the Bronze medalist of the Hong Kong Ladies' Epee Fencing Team in the Games.

As a professional tennis player attending the Doha Asian Games for the first time, Ms Polly Lam could not help noticing the internationalistic aspect of the athletic meet. She remarked, "Such experience is rare, amazing and remarkable.

I have truly widened my horizon through this event. I also got to realise that athletes living in different countries do share a lot of things in common."

"While walking into the huge dining hall, you see the diversities in culture immediately. There are at least five different food sections offering Western, Indian, Chinese, Central Asian and other types of cuisines," she added.

"I am really proud of being part of the Asian Games which have become the games of my life."

The University of Hong Kong shares the joyous moment and congratulates the record achievements of delegates from HKU and her alumni in the 15th Doha Asian Games in December 2006. HKU will continue to nurture the talents of the students and emphasise the importance of their holistic development.
