

CAES

Centre for
Applied English Studies
The University of Hong Kong

English Courses for the
LI KA SHING
FACULTY OF MEDICINE

English Courses for the LI KA SHING FACULTY OF MEDICINE

CAES9720	English for Clinical Pharmacy
CAES9721	Academic Communication for Nursing Students
CAES9722	Academic English for Biomedical Sciences Students
CAES9730	English for Clinical Clerkship for Chinese Medicine Students
CAES9740	Professional Communication in Clinical Practice

These courses aim to help you use written and spoken English to communicate in both your university studies and future profession.

What course will I take?

You will take the course that corresponds with your programme. This is a university requirement.

When will I take it?

In Year 2, Year 3 or Year 4 depending on your programme.

Why do I need to take it?

Being able to communicate with your professors, peers and future colleagues with confidence through writing and speaking in English is an invaluable skill for students in the healthcare field.

How will I learn?

- ♥ Through participating actively in class in a small group setting
- ♥ By collaborating with peers to hone your communication skills in small group or pair work
- ♥ Through getting teacher feedback on your work to help you improve

For more information about the courses

For enquiries, please contact Dr Clarence Wang, Programme Coordinator for CAES courses for the Faculty of Medicine: wwfeng@hku.hk.